Officer Cook was chosen to complete a rather large painting detail within the Sheriff's Office. Officer Cook accepted the task which appeared at first glance would take a lengthy amount of time. He finished the job in four days and finished it with a positive note.

The prepping, finishing, and painting occurred in an area that is not normally associated with an inmate work crew. Officer Cook knew the importance of the job and it assisted the maintenance department, allowing them to complete other tasks located in the same area.

Officer Cook used a combination of inmate and SCORE workers to complete this task. He was very observant and ensured that the inmates worked in an orderly and safe manner. He made sure that all tools and supplies were accounted for and that the inmates behaved responsibly
