Why the Honoree is receiving a GEM Award including dates:

Brent Fanning is a Community Supervision Officer for CSCD and currently works as a specialized officer supervising the probation of sex offenders. In 2024, Officer Fanning volunteered to relocate to the Plano reporting office in response to department needs. Since arriving in Plano, Officer Fanning has gone above and beyond the standard and expectation of his obligations as a supervision officer. Upon arrival, he immediately volunteered to also assume the indirect supervision of sex offenders living outside of the jurisdiction. He collaborated with the other department sex offender officers to coordinate a semiannual meeting of the sex offender unit, and specific training aimed at better supervision of registered sex offenders. He assists the internship program, represents CSCD at local job fairs, volunteers to teach at VALOR, and takes the initiative to assist in training his newer colleagues. Officers Fanning does all of this without ever being asked. Officer Fanning has demonstrated that there is no responsibility that he will shy away from; this includes covering the front window so that Support Staff may have an opportunity to step away. Regardless of all the extra tasks and responsibilities, Officer Fanning maintains a high level of excellence and professionalism. He personifies teamwork every single day of his career, and is an asset to Collin County CSCD. Officer Fanning should be recognized for his hard work and deserves this GEM award.
